

photographs: Fontein, Härkönen, Ness

asa journal online

Association of Social Anthropologists of the UK and Commonwealth

asaonline is an Open-Access, Peer-Reviewed publication

High quality, in-depth articles in any field of anthropology, of any length.
All articles are free to read online or download.
All publications in the series are evaluated by anonymous peer-review.
Articles may include illustrations and audio-visual elements.
ASA journal online welcomes new submissions.

Look us up on www.theasa.org or email the editor@asa.org

“By calling the economy human we put people first, making their thoughts, actions and lives our main concern.”

Keith Hart on the ‘Human Economy’

“...the ambivalent agency of bones as both ‘persons’ and ‘objects’ can confront normalizing ways of dealing with the past.”

Joost Fontein on the Politics of the Dead in Zimbabwe

“Cubans are surprisingly willing to spend their hard-earned money on a girl’s 15th birthday celebration.”

Heidi Härkönen on Cuban Quince rituals

Editor

Simone Abram, Leeds Met University.

Editorial Panel

John Gledhill, University of Manchester; Lisette Josephides, University of Belfast; Alberto Corsin-Jimenez, CSIC Spanish National Research Council ; Cathrine Degnen, University of Newcastle; Trevor Marchand, SOAS; Nayanika Mookherjee, Durham University; Andrew Garner, DSTL; Ian Harper, University of Edinburgh; John Postill, Sheffield Hallam University.